F. PERLEY FLINT WINS FLY CASTING CONTEST

F. Perley Flint, of Bethel and Wilson's Mills, won the eight-day distance fly casting competition, at the Boston Sportsmen's Show, from Vermont and New Hampshire rivals with an average distance of better than 80 feet. His best cast was 86½ feet. He had never competed in an indoor tournament before, and had not handled a rod since the fall fishing. He is to compete February 16 to 23 at the Connecticut Sportsmen's and Motorboat Show, where the State of Maine also has an exhibit.

ENJOYABLE BRIDGE

On Tuesday evening of this week Mrs. Philip S. Chapman entertained two tables of bridge at her home in Mayville.

Those playing were Mrs. Paul C. Thurston, Mrs. F. P. Flint, Mrs. R. Tibbetts, Mrs. Ray Lisherness, Mrs. Viola Lord, Mrs. Ralph Young, Mrs. Tom Brown, and the hostess.

At the close of the game refreshments were served, the table decorations being in keeping with the February holidays.

Mrs. Tom I. Brown received the prize for high score, a lacquered bon bon box, and to Mrs. Ray Lisherness went the second prize, note paper, and to Mrs. Paul C. Thurston, the consolation, a box of valentine candy.

FARM BUREAU SCHOLARSHIP FUND PROGRESSING

Several communities have made part or all of their contributions toward the Farm Bureau Scholarship Fund. The largest amount so far comes from East Bethel. They raised their total allotment of $6.60 on the day of the Planning Meeting.

Two other communities have raised 20 cents for each member. They are Middle Intervale with $3.60 and Roxbury $2.50. Roxbury was the first in the county to reach its goal.

Three other communities have sent in part of their contribution. North Rumford leads this group with $3.80; Waterford is next with $1.40, and Norway has contributed $1.00. These communities mentioned have sent the money in to the Farm Bureau office at South Paris.

There are several others that have a good start toward their goal but have not sent in the money collected. Still other communities have plans under way for a social gathering of some kind to raise the money.

The first report for all counties will be made at the State Farm Bureau Federation meeting on March 26, during Farm and Home Week at the University of Maine.

Any community sending in all or part of their contribution by the middle of March, or soon after, will have the amount included in this report.

The plan for raising the Farm Bureau Scholarship Fund for some student in the College of Agriculture at the University of Maine was proposed to the Federation at their meeting at this same time last March.

Everyone will be interested in learning how the plan has progressed during a year's time.

At Jonesport Josiah S. Alley, 50, and Gilbert Alley, 45, were drowned when their rowboat hit a sunken reef while they sought to salvage laths from the sunken freighter, Rio Tambo.

Twenty-four members of the American Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary enjoyed a meeting at Norway last week. The State Commander was present. Refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed by all.

My name has been mentioned as a candidate for town office. The only office in which I am interested and for which I think I have some fitness is that of member of the school committee. F. E. RUSSELL

I Shall Be a Candidate for ROAD COMMISSIONER and Solicit Your Support at the Annual Meeting.

PHILIP F. BROWN

I shall be a candidate FOR TAX COLLECTOR at the March meeting.

EDWARD E. BENNETT

OUR RETIRING POSTMASTER

Miss Cleo Russell last week retired from the office which she has for twelve years administered with signal efficiency. As she lays down the work, she has the satisfaction of knowing that the high order of her service receives widespread and unanimous recognition. She has been to a marked degree efficient. And unfailingly courteous, patient, kind, and wise. Her sterling qualities of character, with her pleasant personality, in a position where she has been constantly in contact with the public, have been a valued part of our common good.

These few words are but a sign of the high regard in which she is universally held—of the affectionate appreciation which she has so well won, and which she so richly deserves.

ALLEN AND HOLT WIN SCHOLARSHIPS AT BOWDOIN COLLEGE

Stanley W. Allen and Richard S. Holt, of Bethel, have just been awarded scholarships from the Moses M. Hastings scholarship fund, the income from which goes preferably to student from Bethel or Bangor, at Bowdoin College, in Brunswick, where both Allen and Holt are freshmen.

The Hastings scholarship fund, amounting to $9,000, was given by Agnes L. H. Dodge in memory of her father, Moses Mason Hastings, in 1932, with the provision that preference in the award of the income be given to students from Bethel and Bangor.

Scholarship awards for the 1934-35 school year have just been announced at Bowdoin by the local committee on student aid. About $22,000 is being distributed to 194 freshmen, the average award being a little over $100. This year's average award is about the same as in 1934, though somewhat smaller than in previous years.

The My-t-line bridge club met Feb. 19 at the home of Mrs. Alice Littlehale. Mrs. Emily Chapman substituted for Miss Ruby Thurston and Miss Sally Chapman substituted for Mrs. Robena Gaudette.

Mrs. Hester Sanborn won high score.

Frank A. Brown, chairman of the board of selectmen, addressed the Lions at their meeting at Maple Inn Monday evening. He presented a summary of the town's affairs for the past year and showed the standing of the town at the present time as compared with previous years. He says that if the town's investment in tax deeds could be taken up, it would be possible to take care of all indebtedness. This is the third year Mr. Brown has given the club a review of the year's business.

HERE AND THERE IN MAINE

When the new rulings of the Maine Liquor Commission go into effect next July, several Lewiston dispensers of beer will lose their licenses. No count has been made but the number is estimated at 20 or more. Rules then to become effective, with the granting of new licenses, prohibit sales within 300 feet of a building used in whole or in part as a church, public school, or parochial school.

At a meeting held at the Rumford municipal building Feb. 18, over 100 proponents of a proposed $3,000,000 highway from Portland to St. Augustin, Que. met and were told that a committee representing Farmington, Wilton, Strong, Phillips, and towns along the Arnold Trail would voice its disapproval, before the State Highway Commission Tuesday. Opposition is based on the assumption that tourist trade will be deflected from the Farmington section and Arnold Trail towns to the new highway.

The Brunswick Legion are holding the first annual American Legion fair on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week in the town hall for the benefit of the post and its fund. The attractions at the fair include band concerts every night, boxing, a horse racing game, leano, taxi dancing, a real African dodger, and a museum of fine collections.

At Bangor, the death of Charles E. Miller, aged 61, Bangor's city treasurer, is reported.

Mildred E. Smith of Van Buren, 24, youngest Maine legislative representative, kept silent until she learns the ropes. She hopes to be a good legislator, she said, but is "afraid being a politician wouldn't appeal" to her.

Charged with conducting a retail liquor business without paying the special government tax, Albert Richards of Norway saw $1,000 bail in Federal court for appearance at the April term.

Norway's night watchman, A. Leslie McAllister, died Tuesday morning at six o'clock after 10 days illness with intestinal flu followed by double pneumonia which developed Wednesday. He has been night watchman for five years at Norway. He was an expert sawyer and mill man by trade and for many years drove the mail and passenger stage from Stoneham to Norway. He was born at Stoneham, March 7, 1875, the son of Mrs. Isabelle McKean McAllister and the late Austin McAllister. Mr. McAllister was a member of the Knights of Pythias in Stoneham and Norway Lodge, I. O. O. F.

Secretary of State Lewis O. Barrows has notified Maine motorists they must have their 1935 registration plates on vehicles operated after March 1.

East Boston Mother Tells a Secret

How do you keep your children so nice and healthy? This question pleases Mrs. McKay, who now tells her neighbors: "I happened to hear about

Dr. True's Elixir

Laxative Worm Expeller

through a relative—as my little boy was for some time troubled with loss of appetite, restlessness at night and at times was very fretful, I decided to try Dr. True's Elixir. . . . He began to improve immediately and in a very short time he was well. . . . I would never be without it." —Mrs. E. G. McKay, 429A Saratoga St., E. Boston (Mass.).

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, etc.

Dr. True's Elixir laxative-worm expeller is a pure herb medicine. . . . mild and pleasant to take.

Successfully used for 57 years.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts held their meeting Friday, Feb. 15, with an attendance of 25. We formed the horseshoe, sang America, repeated the Girl Scout Promise, had inspection, sang Star Spangled Banner, and went to our patrol corners to study.

After the business meeting we had a Valentine Party which consisted of games, refreshments, and a Valentine box. The party lasted until 9:20 then broke up with many smiles and cheery good byes.

The next meeting will be held February the 22nd at the Girl Scout rooms.—Girl Scout Scriber, Virginia Davis.

The little girls received many pretty gifts.

Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes theme Sunday morning at the Universalist Church was the "Divine Compassion." Elvora Curtis sang a solo and there was a chorus of young people.

The Primary and Intermediate rooms held Valentine parties on Thursday afternoon; and Friday evening the grammar school held a party. Friday evening of this week the high school is to have a party, omitted on account of the party at the church.

The South Woodstock correspondent referred, in her items last week, to the inability of the farmer with no other side line to pay his taxes if economy in town appropriations was not practiced. If she were to enter West Paris postoffice and see the large space papered with the names of delinquent taxpayers, she would feel that economy was needed and living expenses lessened with others who are not farmers, although we quite agree that the farmer's lot at the present time is extremely hard. It would seem that town, state and national appropriations had about reached their height. Yet we see another side where economy might be practiced and that is in the home affairs. It seems rather uncalled for, for people to attend moving pictures and ride in automobiles and when their taxes are unpaid, leaving the expenses of taxation to be paid by the active business men and to those who have saved all their lives to accumulate a competency for old age. But it appears we are just at the beginning of the stress and strain of appropriations and the unborn child of future generations won't live long enough to see the bills settled. When people awake to the fact that bills accumulated must be paid, they will be more careful in voting for appropriations. I am always reminded of the old song, "What You Going to Do When the Rent Comes Round."

BRONCHIAL COUGHS

Just A Few Sips and—Like A Flash—Relief!

Spend 45 cents today at W. E. Bosserman, Druggist, or any drug store for a bottle of Buckley's Mixture (triple acting)—take a couple of sips and sleep sound all night long—your irritating cough or bronchitis is under control.

Buckley's now made in the U. S. A. is by far the largest selling cough medicine in all cold Canada—one little sip and often the ordinary cough is quieted. Use 2 or 3 days and often you'll hear no more from that tough old hang-on cough that nothing seems to help; if not joyfully satisfied money back.

NEW TOWN OFFICERS

With the distribution of Bethel's town reports next week the voters will learn that their town's affairs have been well administered the past year. The important thing at the annual meeting will be the election of faithful and able officers to replace two who have said they will not accept re-election: Mr.
Brown of the board of selectmen and Mr. Davis of the school committee. Both have served well. The selection of their successors is a serious matter and should be made with the consideration of the qualifications of candidates rather than their ability to pull votes.

36,000 AUTOMOBILE "MURDERS"

The President of the United States, in letters to the Governors of the 48 states, has urged the enactment of uniform regulation of traffic, and intensified safety educational campaigns.

There is no good argument
against uniform traffic legislation and regulation in the fact of the fact that the killing record of automobiles last year touched the 36,000 mark.

Think of it: Thirty-six thousand lives snuffed out by automobiles in one year. Why should there be any argument about uniform traffic laws and the need of cooperation between states to eliminate such a disgraceful record as this?

Take a specific example: Why should one city be allowed, as at present, to maintain three different types of "stop" signals at intersections, thus confusing both its own drivers and those from other states? Legislators could work on a "life saving" program such as this to the benefit of every man, woman and child in the country.

The Governor's reception and ball will be held at the State House and Augusta city hall Thursday afternoon and evening. State House corridors and the city hall are decorated for the events.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Calvin T. Fox was for many years a loyal and enthusiastic member of Mount Abram Lodge of Odd Fellows. He died at the Soldiers' Home, Augusta, Jan. 24.

It is hereby resolved that in the passing of Brother Fox, Mount Abram Lodge has met with a regrettable loss, that our sympathy be extended to his family, and that copies of these resolutions be sent to his family and the local paper.

Back to Childhood

by Lawrence
Hawthorne

I'd like to go back to my childhood,
To the days of the long, long ago;
I'd like to recover the pleasures

That the youngsters of ten or twelve know;
I'd like to return to the freedom and fun
That seem to desert us when childhood is done.

I'd like to go sliding and skating,
As we did down at Robinson's pond;
I'd like to hook rides on a bobsled—
Out to Elliott's farm, and beyond;
I'd like to go hunting for walnuts again,
And find it as great an adventure as then!

I'd like to forsake all the problems
That a man must contend with each day;
I'd like to return to my childhood—
Be a boy in an old-fashioned way;
And many warm friendships I'd surely renew,
Because I'd want all my old playmates there, too!

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

by R. M. Hofer

The other day I was in a country
grocery store on the Oregon coast.
Some travelers were getting soft drinks.

I asked the lady proprietress,
whom I knew, if she couldn't make me a ham sandwich. She motioned me to one side and said that the law prohibited her from selling sandwiches unless she took out "another" license. She pointed to the wall of the store which was covered with licenses, federal and state, which were required for the sale of different products.

"But," she said, "there is no law yet that prevents me from giving you a sandwich," which she did.
What a picture! A free country,
a little country store, a hungry
man—and the law prohibits him
from buying a sandwich.

From Marshfield, Oregon, comes the astonishing press dispatch that two dairymen were fined, not for selling impure milk but for the high crime of selling milk that was too rich, too pure—just as it came from a good cow.

I could hardly believe my eyes.
There was no false labeling, no adulteration—the crime seemed to be that they failed to "water" their milk sufficiently to bring the butter fat content down to the legal requirements for the grade of milk sold. The court handling the case gave the offenders a suspended sentence and placed them on parole for a year.

And this happened in the land of the free! Men haled into court and sentenced for serving their customers too well.

Those who forecast that the present Congress, like its predecessor, would be simply a rubber-stamp for keying the plans and experiments
of the President, were mistaken.
The Congress has a mind of its own these days and doesn't hesitate to express it. It isn't so disruptive to Presidential policies, of course, as the Congresses which wreaked havoc with the Hoover Administration, and contributed much to its collapse, but it is giving Mr.
Roosevelt something to think about.

The first actual rebellion against the White House came in the Senate, when the World Court was up for a vote. Every President since the war has advocated American participation in the court, with reservations—and every President has been turned down flat by the Senate. It was almost universally believed, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would be able to do what Harding, Coolidge and Hoover were unable to do. Most big newspapers—outside of the Hearst chain—were for the World Court, as were most publicists and political commentators of both parties. It is said that congratulations were being received by World Court advocates before a vote was taken, so certain seemed the passing of the necessary bill.

Fight for the Court was led by Majority Leader Robinson—no expert on foreign policy, he is conscientious, hard working, loyal to his chief. Fight against it was led by Senators Borah and Johnson, who fear and despise any kind of participation in European affairs.

Result was that the Court was defeated—it gained a substantial majority in the vote, but not the two-thirds necessary for authorizing American participation. Some twenty Democratic senators deserted Mr. Roosevelt to vote against the bill.

That was major rebuff number one. Number two will probably arise when the President's social security program begins to be worked out. Few Senators seem to favor Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations—they have other and, for the most part, wilder ideas as to what should be done for the aged, the ill and the destitute. It is no secret that the White House is worried, is bringing all pressure to bear in an effort to subdue opposition.

The MAINE MEETING PLACE by EARLE DOUCETTE

One of the most significant happenings connected with the present session of the Legislature is the almost unanimous agreement among the Legislators that a larger appropriation should be made available to advertise the recreational,
agricultural, and industrial advantages of Maine.

Just how large an increase will be voted, is, of course, a matter of conjecture. The guessing places the amount in the neighborhood of $150,000.

While this amount will not measure up to the fondest dreams of those who realize the necessity of advertising our State at this time,
it will, nevertheless, be of tremendous help.

As is generally known, the Maine Development Commission which is entrusted with the work of advertising and publicizing the State, has been working under a tremendous financial handicap.

With the small amount of money
at its command, it has been necessary to concentrate on recreational advertising and publicity hoping that agriculture and industry would benefit indirectly. Statistics show that this philosophy, as it goes, has been sound.

We have reached a point, however, when all this is not enough. Competition in all lines of entertainment is becoming keener. We are losing valuable agricultural and recreational business to sections which are spending sums for advertising.

Nowhere is this more apparent than in agriculture. Our agricultural products are, as we know, of excellent quality. Nevertheless, farmers have been faced for time with the problem of their products at suicidal prices.

Now, for the first time, and the assumption that the increasing appropriation doesn't hit any lucrative rocks, agriculture will receive the benefit of direct advertising. It is hard to overstate the ultimate value to the farmer of commercial fishermen. It is a tremendous step in the right direction; an enlightened step that reacts to the good of all of us.

The President's $5,000,000,000
public works bill has also found hard going. Congressmen are opposed to giving sole authority for disbursing it into Mr. Roosevelt's hands, wish to earmark the money for definite purposes. As a result, legislation is held up.

Behind much of the opposition to the White House is the old element of political patronage. Mr. Roosevelt has not, in the view of many Congressmen, allowed them to make their choice of "Deserving Democrats" for government jobs;
he has often disregarded the recommendations of Senators and Representatives as to state appointments. Congress is angry over this —and a Congressman, "robbed" of his chance to put constituents in easy and profitable jobs, is in no mood for joining wholeheartedly into a program advanced by the man who did the "robbing."

Disappearing foreign trade has been one of the most difficult of problems during late years. Last year an effort to solve it was made by passing legislation whereby the President was empowered to enter into reciprocal trade agreements with foreign powers, under which each country would agree to grant
the other favors.

Secretary of State Hull is heart-
and soul in favor of these treaties
—he wants all foreign nations not discriminating against American products, to have equal advantages in trading with us. He is opposed to trade quotas, regimentation and similar barriers to the free flow of products.

Opposed to this is George Peek, special White House Advisor on foreign trade—and the clash between the views of Messrs. Peek and Hull has, according to Business Week, "blocked the whole progress of export recovery." Mr.
Peek stands for government barter, with ironhanded regimentation of both imports and exports.

A short time ago business men were elated at an authoritative report that the President had finally decided against Mr. Peek and for Mr. Hull. He will throw his weight behind reciprocal trade agreements,
not barter.

Thus, the chances are that the efforts will soon be made to trade back, now that a compromise has been decided upon those efforts succeed, many dreds of millions of dollars come from foreign shores to in American cash registers.

Business observers are now
ing that what the construction industry did to break the depression of 1921, the motor industry is to be doing on behalf of the rent and infinitely more important depression. Both production sales are rising, and it is forecast that 3,000,000 units will be sold in 1935.

Business reports continue to show improvement in all lines.

TO SOUTH PARIS

Gould Academy, playing without services of Bob Browne, who is ill, could not hold the sharp going South Paris team. The visitors took an early lead and never in danger. Only in the period when Gould outscored Paris team 13-7 did they show of the form they displayed at Bridgton and Norway. Wentzel led the scoring for the team with nine points. Stearns led 11 points for the winners. Millett and Penfold followed with 10 each. The South Paris players were on a real scor- rampage and could sink shots any place on the floor. The second team lost its third game of the season, receiving its drubbing 39-18. The other games were lost by one basket. Morse, visiting left forward of the second team, scored 10 bas- for 20 points.

GOULD ACADEMY
NOTES

Special assembly last Thursday morning featured demonstration experiments in high frequency elec- tricity under the direction of Mr. Bailey of the science department. Richard Williams of Mechanic Falls acted as leader.

Miss Shirley Cole, Gould '34, was chosen queen of the winter carni- val held at Westbrook Junior Col- lege recently. Miss Cole also served in an important position on the committee having arrangements for the carnival.

Mark Hamlin, Gould '32, is on the Dean's List at Bowdoin College, and because of his high rank is al- lowed unlimited cuts in his class- es at that institution.

The cast for the senior class play, the three act comedy, "My Irish Rose," has been announced by Miss Ruth A. Leavengood, direc- tor of dramatics, as follows: Fran- ces Moryll of Mason, Clement Phil- brook of Littleton, N. H., Barbara Myers of Bemis, Betty Soule of Gor- ham, Betty Edwards of Barton, Vt., Wilber Clay of Lincoln, Helen Philbrook of Shelburne, N. H., Wil- lard Wight of Newry, and Paul E. Browne, Mary Sanborn, Frederic MacMillan and Howard Thurston of Bethel. The play will be pre- sented the latter part of next month in the William Bingham Gymna- sium.

The following students gave de- clarations in the assembly hall on Friday morning: Josephine Thurs- ton, Paul Browne, Sylvia Merrill, Philip Chapman, Grace Lowe, Shur- win Bennett, Mildred Vail, Edward Holt, Robert Moore and Erland Wentzel of Bethel, Clement Phil- brook of Shelburne, N. H., Norwood Waterhouse of Poland and Agnes Stanley of Albany.

Gould Girls vs. Gorham Girls
Friday night the Gould girls will compete in basketball with the Gorham, N. H., girls, and the Gould boys B Squad with the Gorham B Squad at Bethel in the William Bingham Gymnasium. Both teams won at Gorham earlier in the season, and these should be close and interesting games to watch. It is hoped that many will attend and support the girls in the one home game which they will play with an outside team this year. The first game will be called at 7:30. The admission will be 10c.

The freshmen were defeated by the juniors in a thrilling overtime game in the boys' interclass game on Monday, by a score of 29-27. The freshmen boys also were defeated by the seniors, 47-33 on Tuesday. The summaries follow:

"Crimson Tide" Gets Rose Bowl Trophy

The Rissman trophy, won by the University of Alabama football team in the Rose Bowl contest at Pasadena, is shown here as it was received at the University of Alabama recently.

World's Largest Bed

Do you know what is the world's largest bed? In the famous Victoria and Albert museum in London is the ancient and famous "Bed of Ware." It is 11 feet long, and 7½ feet wide, and will comfortably accommodate a dozen sleepers. Originally it stood in the manor house at Ware. Later it was moved to an inn in the same village, and the records of that hostelry relate that the bed frequently saw service "for as many as 12 frolicsome sleepers." Shakespeare gave the relic undying fame by mentioning it in his Twelfth Night in the line: "Al- though the sheet were big enough for the Bed of Ware."—Pearson's Weekly.

Praying Mantids

There are several different kinds of Praying Mantids in North Amer- ica known by the common names of Devil's Rear Horses, Scouthings, and Mule-Killers, the latter name being given to a species occurring in the South which is believed to poison stock with a brownish fluid which they emit from their mouth. The name Praying Mantid was given to them in view of the fact that one of the favorite attitudes of these creatures is supposed to be devout. It is said that these insects are the only ones that can look over their shoulders. All are beneficial insects owing to the fact that they destroy numbers of injurious insects.

Oldest Craft

In ancient Greece there were gold- beaters who could produce gold leaf 100,000th of an inch thick, but though the modern British gold- beater still adheres to ancient meth- ods, he can make gold leaf 200,000th of an inch in thickness. It is the gold beater's boast that they be- long to the most ancient of all crafts, and they point to the gold leaf adorning the mummy case of An Anubis, in the British museum, dating back 1,500 years. Machinery has not replaced this handicraft, and the gold beater can still be found in London, though the number is small.

The Heart of Hollywood

By THAYER WALDO
McIntire Newspaper Syndicate,
WNU Service

There are lamps circled and the music played and twelve thousand people seethed around. Half an hour still before the picture would begin; thirty minutes more of glare and blare and babble, then another Garnhelm's Arabian theatre premiere would be history. I stood on the fringe of the crowd, watching and listening to it all.

Out in front of the forecourt there was suddenly a commotion. Into the hanging microphone the voice of the announcer near me cries: "Here it is, ladies and gentlemen—the big moment everyone's been waiting for. Miss Sylvia Malvern, the lovely star of tonight's picture, is just arriving. In a minute we'll have her here to say a few words to you."

Up the narrow cleared passage from the curb Sylvia made her glittering way. Jewels, fur, and her flashing smile created a picture of dazzling, if overdone, charm. As she passed a few feet from me I became aware of someone at my elbow, squirming and pushing forward. I glanced sideways with a scowl—and hardly stifled an explosion of mirth at what I saw.

There beside me stood a short, squat man whose face was the most absurd concoction of features I have ever looked upon.

I'd just gotten the full startling impression when, to my further astonishment, he grinned and waved at Sylvia Malvern. Moreover, she returned it with a gracious nod.

"Gosh!" he exclaimed in a gurgling voice. "Ain't she grand?" "Sure is!" I agreed heartily. "Do you know her?"

"Oh, yeah—she's my best friend, really. 'Course I only met her couple o' weeks ago, but now it seems almost like we'd known each other always."

"That's certainly fine! I've wished for years I could meet her myself. How did you manage it?"

"Well, guess I was just kinda lucky. But it was awful important to me; maybe that helped. I think I got 'most anythin' I want bad enough."

"So you were very anxious to see Miss Malvern, eh?"

"Gee, you bet I was!" he replied with something like a wistful note.

"I see, she was the first person to ever make me feel real happy. Back when I went to school, all the other kids used to laugh and point at me and holler 'Funny-face!' So I got kinda in the habit of stayin' by myself. Sometimes I was pretty lonesome, too, and—but aw, shucks, that sounds like I was feelin' sorry for myself; I didn't meaned it that way."

"I went to movies a lot 'cause it was dark in the theaters and—well, I liked 'em. One day 'bout a year ago I first saw Sylvia—Miss Malvern, that is—and right off I was crazy about her. Her face was so pretty and sweet and—kind-lookin'. Guess I musta gone back to see that pitcher five or six times, and the same with all of hers after that."

After an instant's pause he went on more eagerly than ever:

"Then 'long some time last winter I got the idea how swell it'd be if I could see her herself. And maybe even talk to her. So I just up and sold some land my folks had left me and come straight out here from Cedar Hollow—that's my home town, in Iowa."

"I didn't have much notion what to do, but I found Zenith studio and hung around the gate. One day the man in uniform there asked me what I wanted and I told him, and he called somebody else. First thing I knowed they was takin' me right into the place. I waited in some place just a few minutes, and then they told me where to find Sylvia."

"Well, it all turned out like I hoped for. We was alone, on the stage where she'd been actin' for this pitcher. I don't remember just what I said; maybe some of it was kinda foolish, on account of I was so nuts about her. But it don't matter now—all I care about is thinkin' how swell she was to me. I ain't never gonna forget that, and I'll never mind no more when other people make fun of me. An' a fella needs is one real friend."

Suddenly he noticed many of the throng drifting toward the theatre. "Golly!" he cried. "I gotta go; I might miss some of it. Well, hope you meet her some time, too. G'bye."

Before I could summon poise to move or speak, he was gone. I was still sitting there, pondering the tale and its strangely touching teller, when a crisp voice came to me from beyond the palms—the announcer signaling off. Quite idly I listened.

"And finally, ladies and gentlemen," he said, "let me urge you to attend this truly great picture soon. I saw it in preview just last night, and it has everything; cast, story, songs, comedy—oh, what comedy! There's one skit I'm sure will be the season's biggest laugh. And they tell me it's absolutely novel; a scene in which the chief actor didn't even know he was appearing. Miss Malvern's with him, and makes it a grand stooge. Honestly, it's a panic, and only one of the high spots in a real four-star show. Thank you; good night."

Dead Branches Fire Hazard

Forest fires are a frequent aftermath of serious insect outbreaks in the woods. Large forest areas hit by defoliating or boring insects that kill a high percentage of the timber are often swept later by conflagrations that are very difficult to control, reports the United States Department of Agriculture. The dead branches both in the insect-killed trees and on the ground provide plenty of fuel for any chance spark or flame. Furthermore, the defoliated trees offer little resistance to the sun and the litter on the forest floor is more readily dried out. Some insect outbreaks, such as those of the mountain-pine beetle in lodgepole pine, kill from 50 to 90 per cent of the timber in the stand where they occur. Even a 50 per cent kill opens the forest canopy enough to keep the material on the ground highly inflammable, and, in addition, supplies numerous dead stems which aid in starting lightning fires, in supplying fuel for the flames, and in throwing burning twigs or pieces of bark across fire lines.

AFTER L—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to give his matrimonial troubles a rest. we uncover complexes or mental reflexes; frequently we do not. And when we have uncovered them we cannot always cure them. You say this girl has a ruined nose? Does it affect her appearance greatly?"

"She's ugly when you look at her the first time, Doc, but after you've talked with her and looked some more the shock sort of wears off. I got a notion that if her nose could be straightened up she'd be a good-looking girl. And maybe if her mind could be straightened, she'd be a good girl."

"Know anything about her antecedents, her background?"

"I don't know and I can't find out. She won't tell me."

"It may be," Doctor Burt suggested, "that she doesn't know. Has Blethen finished with the case?"

"Yes, sir. He told me not to bother him about her no more."

Doctor Burt indicated his telephone. "Call him up, Chief, and ask him if he has any objection to having me give her an unofficial examination."

McNamara did so. Following a brief conversation, he turned the telephone over to Stephen.

Stephen took the telephone. "Doctor Blethen? Burt speaking. The chief came to my office about that girl he has at the central station."

From the doorway leading into the waiting room, Lanny gazed upon the girl with frank disapproval. Over Nance's shoulder she caught Stephen's eye and shook her head sorrowfully.

"The old girl's shocked!" Nance laughed softly without looking around, while Lanny disappeared.

"How do you know, Miss Belden?" Stephen inquired.

"Mirror," and Nance Belden pointed.

"Close your eyes," Stephen commanded, "and describe this room to me."

"All right. There are two empty highball glasses on the telephone stand back of you," she sniffed.

"Bourbon. The stand's three feet high and the telephone book is in the compartment under the top of the stand. The telephone is one of those combination receiver-mouth-piece things like they use in English stage scenes, and the telephone cord is white. The desk is solid walnut. I think, flat-topped and clean. You have a bronze combination ink-well, pen-rack, and pen-tray. There is a blue crayon pencil and a red crayon pencil and a black gold-handled fountain pen on the pen rack. The fountain pen has green ink in it. I know because on the calendar pad on the desk, which is opened at November 23—although this is the 24th—you've written something with the pen very recently. You're sitting in a walnut swivel chair, brown leather upholstered, and a high back up to your shoulder tops. The chair's chair is an over-stuffed rocker, and if you give him another drink he'll fall asleep in it. On the wall back of you, there is a framed diploma in Latin, issued to Stephen John Burt by Leland Stanford Junior University Medical school, and about four feet from it is the Oath of Hippocrates in a black frame, like the diploma. The print is old English and done in black and red. Across the room, in back of the chief, is a walnut bookcase, built in detachable tiers, and there's a white washstand in the corner close by it. In back of me a door leads into the old lady's den and—here Nance opened her hand bag, took out a small mirror, held it up and opened her eyes an instant—yes, I thought so. That door is ajar and the old lady is listening to every word I say."

"Now, I'll describe you, You're woman in the waiting room," she announced. "She said to me: 'Where the h—l's that bonehead of a chief gone?' Lanny looked at Dan McNamara severely over the rims of her spectacles. 'Friend of yours?' she queried witheringly."

"Yes," McNamara admitted, "and Doc's new patient. Bring her in and he'll give her the once over."

But Lanny shook her head. "This nut shop is closed for the day," she told him. "Bring her around at one o'clock tomorrow. The doctor has fifteen minutes then."

"Please bring the patient in, Lanny," Stephen pleaded. "And, then you might—"

he glanced eloquently at their empty glasses. Lanny glared at him, so he smiled—and she ceased to glare. But she went on mumbling.

Dan McNamara shook his head sagely. "Nothing wrong with that woman's thinking apparatus," he informed Stephen.

And then Lanny ushered the new patient in. She paused just inside the door, swept the room with a slow glance and permitted her gaze to come to rest on Stephen Burt, who rose and bowed to her. Instantly the frozen hostility in her glance faded and she smiled. "Reminds me of a gargoyle," Stephen reflected.

"Meet my friend, Dr. Stephen Burt, Nance," Dan McNamara introduced her airily. "Doc, this is Nance Belden, alias Dorothy Case, alias Fay Barham, alias Elizabeth Vernon."

Stephen said politely that he was delighted to make her acquaintance, and Nance replied with acrid directness. "Why?" Whereat Stephen Burt laughed and set a chair for her. Nance plumped herself down in it with a weary sigh, jerked off her jaunty hat and threw it on Stephen's desk. "All right, Steve. Shoot! What's the idea of the big convention? Another fishing expedition?"

"Now, Nance," Dan McNamara soothed her, "you cut that out. You're not talking to Doc Blethen. Doc Burt's a gentleman."

Nance remembered her manners. "My error," she apologized.

From the doorway leading into the waiting room, Lanny gazed upon the girl with frank disapproval. Over Nance's shoulder she caught Stephen's eye and shook her head sorrowfully.

a darling. You're tall and you haven't started to grow a tummy yet. You're about thirty-two or three years old, your hair is dark brown and your eyes dark blue, and you have nice teeth, and they show when you smile. You have nice hands and your nails were manicured this morning, but you have a dirty spot on the finger-nail of your right index finger—no, it isn't dirt. It's iodine. Pardon! My error. Do I win first prize, Doc?"

"In a walk, Miss Belden. You are absolutely the most amazing person I have ever examined. You are one in a million—one of those rare persons who not only see everything at a glance but take a mental photograph of it. And remember it. Yes, you win a prize."

"I'll have a highball with you boys," said Miss Belden composedly.

"You'll not, you little—this and that," Lanny countered from behind the door. "The very idea!"

"Then the party breaks up here and now," Miss Belden informed Stephen.

"Lanny," Stephen called, "I hope you aren't forgetting the laws of hospitality."

"Come on, kid," the girl retorted. "Buy me one and I'll get the chief to do something nice for you in return."

"What influence has the likes of you with the chief of police?" Lanny was emerging with two highballs.

"Do you drive a car, Miss Lanning?"

Nance Belden whistled sharply to Dan McNamara.

"Get out your card, Dan. Here's the fountain pen. Write as I dictate. Ready: 'To all traffic officers: The bearer, Miss Rebecca Lanning, has the freedom of the city. She has my authority to park where she pleases and she shall not be tagged. She cannot be arrested for anything except murder and even then she must not ride in the wagon. Signed: Dan McNamara, Chief of Police.'"

Dan McNamara obeyed. Nance Belden viewed the card, blotted it and handed it to Lanny. "Now, you tell 'em all who's kind to you, Rebecca. I'm some kid, am I not? You bet I'm some kid. Dan knows it and your boss knows it and if, by now, you don't know it, I hope Steve fixes you."

"You are some kid. I admit it. Thank you, dear. You shall have a highball."

"Have one yourself," Nance suggested grandly. "Let's all be so clabbe, eh, Steve?"

"Miss Belden—" Steve began.

"Call me Nance," the strange young creature interrupted. "Why all the formality?"

"Have you any objection, Nance, to telling me your real name?"

"None at all. I don't know my real name."

"Who were your parents?"

"I don't know."

"Why did you steal the silk stockings?"

Nance threw back her head and laughed. "Why you silly, I had runs in every pair I owned."

"Poor dear!" Lanny was speaking. Her hand strayed over the girl's jet black, shiny bob; her fingers sought a small like ear and tagged it gently.

Nance looked up at the nurse, surprise and friendliness shining in her eyes.

"Why, you're sweet, aren't you? Why, you darling!" And she lifted her face for Lanny to kiss. Lanny kissed her. Trust Lanny for that.

"It's too late to go further tonight," Lanny said. "Bring her in at nine tomorrow morning."

"Can't, Lanny." With a bound the excellent McNamara had landed beside Lanny in the garden of friendship as one might say. "She's due in the police court at nine o'clock for sentence. Right away she'll be waltzed over to the Superior court to the judge that gave her a suspended sentence two years ago. She hasn't made good, so he'll sign the commitment papers, and it'll be some time before we see our Nance again."

"Has she an attorney?"

"The public defender, that's all." Lanny looked at Stephen. Stephen looked at Lanny. Both nodded.

the girl's face down on her breast and patted the rouged cheek. "See you tomorrow, dearie," she promised. "Be a good girl now and be nice to Dan McNamara, because he's one of the best friends you'll ever have."

"Kiss me again, please," Nance whispered. And when Lanny had complied, the girl came around the desk to Stephen Burt. "I want you to kiss me, too," she said. "You're sweet—thank you a lot."

When Dan McNamara and his prisoner had departed, Lanny and Stephen looked at each other throughout a long silence, which Lanny was first to break.

"That girl's clean, Steve. Not a touch of the slattern about her. She could pass the Binet Intelligence test so fast she'd meet it on her way back. And she isn't tough at all. She's only trying to be, and she finds it uphill work."

"Defense mechanism largely," he said. "Better go home, Lanny. Get a good night's sleep and try to forget what a sad world we live in."

"It'd be a d—d sight sadder if you didn't live in it," she snapped.

Under stress of emotion, Lanny, as she grew older, occasionally indulged herself in a little mild profanity. Stephen didn't mind. He knew she was disillusioned, middle-aged in point of years, but old with the wisdom and sadness of the world, as only a doctor or a trained nurse can be; that she had earned her privileges. As a surgical nurse she had been sworn at by doctors whose nerves grew taut as piano wires, during a dangerous operation, and she had learned to give as good as she received—wherefore the men of her world respected her and liked her, for her courage and efficiency.

"See to it that you're on hand in court tomorrow morning, Steve, with a sweet line of scientific argument to bewilder that judge and the district attorney," she charged a little later. "Good night, my dear boy."

Dear old Lanny! Once more had occurred to her the miracle of love. A stranger, a bit of dot-sam and jet-sam on the muddy sea of life—had looked behind her brusque business-like, bell-front exterior and found the great warm heart that yearned so for affection and understanding. Hers was a strange nature. She was so strong, and so possessed of the urge to share her strength with those she loved particularly if they evinced any affection for her, that she was singularly democratic in her choice of beneficiary. Nance Belden, like Stephen Burt, had appealed to her thwarted mother love, and nothing that the girl had been, nothing she might ever be, would alter Lanny's opinion, formed on an instant's notice, that the girl was an angel. A dark angel, perchance, and like Lucifer, fallen from high place, but—an angel, nevertheless.

The presence of Chief of Police Daniel McNamara cleared a lane through the corridor of the Hall of Justice, in which the police courts of San Francisco are located.

He paused before the courtroom door. "Nance is in there," he told Stephen. "I'll not go in with you. I'd have a week of rotten publicity in all the papers if I appeared to have any special interest in the case. Her lawyer's name is Tyrrell, and he'll call you as an expert witness."

Clarinet Is Most Useful of Instruments in Band

The clarinet, like other members of the wood wind family, goes back to those instruments used by Pan, when nymphs and fauns danced to the gay music of pipes in the woods. Since those early woodland days, says an authority in the Washington Post, the pipe has undergone many changes. The mouthpiece was given a double reed for the oboe, the English horn and the bassoons, but in the clarinet only a single reed is used. Much as the clarinet resembles the oboe, it does not taper, and is of equal thickness until the end, where it flares into a bell. Of all the wood-wind instruments, the clarinet is the most useful because of its wide range, its ease of playing and the great variety of tone.

Clarinet is made in different keys and pitches. The ones in B flat and A are most commonly in use, although some of the scores call for clarinet in C, E flat and D. Occasionally an alto clarinet is employed and, more frequently, a bass clarinet, which is the largest and deepest pitched instrument of this family. It has a crook for the mouthpiece, and a large bell. It sounds an octave below the B flat clarinet.

The clarinet was the last instrument to enter the classical orchestra. Mozart was the first composer to bring out its chief possibilities.

Big Bertha's Long Range Outclassed Other Guns

Typical artillery of the World war, writes John A. Menaugh, in the Chicago Tribune, were the following British guns: The 14-inch gun, with a range of 20 miles; the 12-inch gun, with a range of 19 miles; the 9.2-inch gun, firing a shell 15 miles; the 6-inch gun, with a range of 10 miles; the 12-inch howitzer, hurling a shell 8 miles; the 60 pounder rifle, with a range of more than 7 miles; the 9.2-inch howitzer, shooting 7 miles; the 18 pounder field piece, with a range of about 9,000 yards; the 4.5-inch howitzer, with a range of 7,000 yards, and the 3.7-inch howitzer, shooting 5,500 yards.

The maximum range of the huge German 42-centimeter howitzers that were used against the forts at Antwerp was 10,300 yards. The German 8.9-inch trench mortar threw a shell 1,250 yards. The German Minenwerfer was capable of throwing a 50-pound trench bomb 450 yards.

It was the German long range gun, the Big Bertha, however, that was the most talked-of weapon of the World war. A number of guns of this type were employed in shelling Paris.

Others of the guns had different maximum ranges, the greatest only slightly less than 80 miles.

7:30 p. m. Eight or ten responded last Sunday evening to the invitation to meet and consider the proposition to form a young people's discussion group, and we decided to go ahead and hold a first meeting this Sunday evening and begin with an open discussion on the changing economic and political conditions of today. A committee will report suggesting a name for the group and a plan of organization. We hope to have a larger attendance Sunday evening.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY

Sunday School at 10 o'clock.
Services Sunday morning at 10:45.

"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Feb. 24. Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all." (I Chron. 29:11). The Lesson-Sermon also includes passages from the Christian science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, one of which reads: "If Mind was first chronologically, is first potentially, and must be first eternally, then give to Mind the glory, honor, dominion, and power, everlastingly due its holy name." (p. 143)

BIG CIRCUS WILL PLAY ENTIRE WEEK IN LEWISTON

Mammoth, mastodontic, mighty—yes these and all the other adjectives employed for years by circus press agents to recount the glories of their shows may well be applied to the Kora Temple Shrine Circus which is to play in Lewiston the week of March 11-16 at the Lewiston Armory.

Twenty big acts have been booked, more than the ordinary three-ring circus ever presents for its patrons. Real circus music with a circus bandmaster in charge of its direction. A real ringmaster and some of the greatest acts of the present day circuses, acts whose names are household words.

Tanbark and sawdust will transform the Armory into a real replica of the Big Top. There will be the usual spectacular Grand Entry followed by daring, dazzling, death defying acts from not alone the "man on the flying trapeze" but from equestrians, acrobats and clowns. There will be horses, elephants, everything that goes with the big circuses for this is to be the largest indoor circus ever staged.

And a bright, shiny sedan is to be given away each day. Members of the Kora Temple Shrine are now busily engaged in selling books of tickets for Lewiston's biggest week. Headquarters have been established in the Shrine Temple.

Sneezing

In every age in every country, men have attached some kind of mysterious significance to sneezing. Early Christians crossed themselves. Medieval Europe went back to bed for hours if it sneezed while arising. Today, writes Ray Mollenhauer, Danville, Ill., in Collier's Weekly, sneezing is a sign of truthfulness in Turkestan, an indication of wisdom in some parts of Scotland and a bad omen throughout a large part of the world which still exclaims "God bless you" or its equivalent when one sneezes—for fear his soul will leave his body.

It is estimated by the Department of Agriculture that no less than 126 billion pounds of plant food and soil that contains it, are being removed every year by erosion from fields and pastures of the United States.

Holman F. Day, whose poems of Maine's big woods lumbering operations brought fame in the literary world a and more years ago, died in sleep at Mill Valley, Calif., Feb. 18. It is reported that a nine mile jam on the Kennebec River between Wyman Lake and the Forks is giving much concern to the people up that way.

NEWS

THE ROAD DOESN'T MATTER • THE SPEED IS UNIMPORTANT • SIT WHEREVER YOU WANT

YOU'RE ALWAYS IN THE COMFORT ZONE

THE 1935 Ford V-8 brings you the most important Ford development since the introduction of the Ford V-8 engine—the new Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating.

Wherever you sit in this new Ford V-8, you ride centerpoised—between the springs. Springs are longer, more flexible, and the springbase increased to 123 inches. The result is "front seat riding comfort" even for back seat passengers.

New riding ease in the 1935 Ford V-8 is matched by new driving ease. Control, steering, parking are easier. Starting and shifting have been made almost effortless. Braking requires surprisingly little foot pressure—yet is surer, smoother.

Here is a car that is styled to the minute—built for the years. Welded all-steel body, engine and chassis improvements make it more durable than ever. Safety glass throughout at no extra cost.

Look to this new Ford V-8 for everything you could want in a modern car. See it at your nearest Ford dealer's now.
